Are you interested in interdisciplinary research but not sure where to start? Have you always wanted to work on a research team but had trouble finding the right people to work with?

Come to the RCHSS Interdisciplinary Research Speed Dating workshop to look for your perfect “research match”! This workshop will allow you to have short conversations with a variety of faculty across the college who are interested in forming interdisciplinary research teams. Each round will be guided by a few questions that will help to assess your compatibility as research collaborators. The workshop will include time to reconnect with promising “matches” and to begin outlining your research plans. Email Sara Evans (sevan120@kennesaw.edu) with any questions.
